

2021 Met Gala Jewelry: Bring On the Diamonds!

By Melissa Rose Bernardo | September 14, 2021

After a very jewelry-light New York Fashion Week and a highly disappointing VMAs red carpet, we'll admit we weren't waiting with bated breath for the bling at the Sept. 13 Met Gala.

Turns out we should have been, because these folks pulled out all the stops jewelry-wise. (So. Many. Diamonds.) Here are just a few of our favorites. And be sure to tell us yours in the comments!

Jordan Roth

Jordan Roth (photo: Evan Agostini/Invision/AP)

If you don't know couture-loving Broadway producer and Jujamcyn Theaters president Jordan Roth by now, you should: His risk-taking, inimitable style has been a fixture on Broadway red carpets and events like the Met Gala for years. We knew his look would be major, and Roth—in a collaboration with fiber artist Michael Sylvan Robinson—did not disappoint. For jewels, he added an amethyst Boivin strand from A La Vieille Russie and two major pieces from Lydia Courteille's Caravan collection, including a 37.5 ct. gobstopper of an aquamarine ring. Roth's husband, producer and author Richie Jackson, also wore a Courteille brooch.

Caravan necklace in 18k black rhodium gold with enamel, laguna agate, lapis, sapphires, and tsavorite, price on request; Lydia Courteille

Caravan 4 Faces ring with 37.5 ct. aquamarine, sapphires, and diamonds, price on request; Lydia Courteille